Memorandum of Understanding

The Supply Register and the NASUWT are pleased to announce a new Memorandum of Understanding to promote an ethical alternative for the employment of supply teachers.

The pay and conditions of teachers are inextricably linked to the provision of high-quality education. Supply teachers play a vital role in ensuring the highest standards of education for all children and young people. However, the way in which the supply agency market has operated has often been to the detriment of schools and supply teachers. Our new partnership aims to deliver a positive change for the benefit of supply teachers and schools.

The Supply Register and the NASUWT are committed to ending the cycle where supply teachers get less, schools pay more and supply agencies make excessive profits. The Memorandum of Understanding between the Supply Register and the NASUWT represents a better deal for schools, including:

- the highest standards in recruitment practice;
- full compliance with all the relevant legislation, including safeguarding checks;
- supply teachers who are provided with ongoing training and CPD opportunities;
- transparent charges and no hidden fees;
- no finder's fees;
- supply teachers procured through the Supply Register have access to ongoing training and development; and
- the recruitment procedures used ensure equality and diversity.
